

Time Changes All Things But The Past
Randy Swift – 1/4/05

I sat and watched an old man stare at his coffee cup
So I walked over to him, thought that I might cheer him up.
I guess that he'd been waiting for someone to come along
He told me his story, I wrote him this song.

He said God gave him to me back in 63' a gift from up above
While he crawled around down on the floor, Hey! I just fell in love.
So many things we talked about we never did get done.
It left me with no good excuse to give my only son.

Then he said time changes all things but the past
We think this life goes on forever but it won't last
So say and do the things you need to now, cause it sure goes by fast
Time changes all things but the past.

So many times he told his mom, "I know I need to change"
But every time she'd say, "Let's go to Church" he was off to other things
Time kept right on ticking until one day it was done.
It left him with no good excuse to give God's only son.
